

Daisy.

This is an 3D Daisy the size of the finished block is 9.5" square including a seam allowance.

For the background I used a pale blue, the petals are white and the centre circle yellow. I also thing that if you made the petals yellow and the centre brown it would turn into a Sunflower.

Using the petal template cut 38 petals.
Cut 1 centre circle.
Cut a background square 9.5" x 9.5".

Take two of the petals and place them together, begin at near the bottom on one side and sew round to the other side leaving enough room so the petal can be turned inside out. Figure 1.

Repeat this with all the petals.

Turn them inside out, then spray them with spay starch, (follow the directions on the can of starch.)

Use your fingers to flatten the petals, with the seam in the centre. Figure 2. Then press the petal the curved end should curve up.

Fold the background square into quarters, the creases can be used as guides when placing the petals.

Place the first petal on a centre line and over the centre of the square, three quarters of an inch from the edge of the square.. Sew the petal in place with a line of sewing close to the centre of the square. Figure 3. Most of the petal should be loose.
